Jul 30, 2020 Acrobat XI Pro 11.0.22.Final Patch - Crack Utorrent..Expression of a green fluorescent protein in the rat corpus allatum and its regulation by the steroid hormone ecdysone. The expression of a green fluorescent protein (EGFP) in the corpus allatum (CA) of transgenic adult female rats was tested and further characterized. Anti-GFP immunohistochemistry revealed EGFP-expressing neurons throughout the CA and in both gonad-independent and gonad-dependent internal neural networks. EGFP was also expressed in neurons of the hypothalamic ventromedial nucleus (VMH) and dorsomedial nucleus (DMH) of the rat brain. Serial optical sectioning confirmed these findings, and also showed that CA neurons send processes to their own nucleus. Furthermore, these processes are differentially modulated by gonadectomy and hormonal treatment, further suggesting the influence of gonadotropic hormones on CA neuron activity. Expression of EGFP was enhanced by a single injection of ecdysone. In CA explant cultures, EGFP expression was also induced by addition of the ecdysone-responsive meso-5-HT1B receptor agonist iso-methasone. These data suggest that a GFP reporter 3da54e8ca3
